

Disclaimer

Disclaimer concerning the uploaded files of Psalms that Sing translation guides for the Psalms.

So as not to delay any further the release of some of the guides for public review and feedback, the guides will go online on our website www.psalms thatsing.org with the following disclaimers:

1. The different guides are only beta versions and will still undergo further editing.
2. The bibliography is not complete. Most guides will not contain a list of references, the plan is that a central list will be made available.
3. The guides are not altogether consistent. A template was followed but individual authors did put a unique stamp on each guide. At this point we haven't had a final editor and graphic designer to make them more consistent. The plan is to still do that, as soon as we can.
4. The Psalm guides are not commentaries and in no way claim to be in any way an exhaustive analysis of these ancient poems. The guides are what they were intended to be, only guides. The recommended exegesis and translations reflect the views of the individual contributors and were reviewed by an editorial committee, but the team does not make any claims about the authority and finality of their work.

The Psalms that Sing Team welcomes any feedback. Comments can be sent to sebastian_floor@tSCO.org